He made the same record a week ago, but it was not allowed as he knocked down a hurdle in his flight over the obstacles. Yesterday he did not touch a hurdle, and many thought that he could have made better time had there seen anybody in the race capable of making the tall, handsome young fellow exert himself.

M. F. Sweeney, the champion high jumper, won his contest with his usual ease. Then the bar was placed at six feet six inches and Sweeney tried.

given Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., a more lasting reputation than even his great work as an educator at Dartmouth college.

Thousands of men and women cured of some form of nervous weakness or blood disease today heap their blessings on Prof. Phelps as the discoverer of Paine's celery compound-persons who perhaps might never have heard of his able work in the medical school of Dartmouth college. Prof. Phelps had already won a high place in the opinions of the world's greatest physicians and investigators by his long, fruitful labors in the Dartmouth laboratory long before his momentous discovery of Paine's celery compound. The discovery of Paine's celery compound is the principal event of the century in the history of medicine.

It brings many diseases of nervous origin, such as neuralgia, sleeplessness, melancholia, hysteria, headaches, dyspepsia and liver and kidney dis-eases under control. The fact of speedy and complete nerve repair where disease was wasting

Is its keynote.

The clear demonstration of the value of his discovery sounded the retreat to a multitude of ravaging diseases.

Paine's celery compound, his one tremendous formula, to-day insures needful sleep, sound ap-petter and assimilation and regularity of nerve petite and assimilation and regularity of herve action.

Paine's celery compound, the greatest nerve and brain strengthener and regulator the world knows to-day, restores health by overcoming nervous exhaustion. It cures neuralgia and rheumatism by getting rid of sleeplessness and making sure the nerves are beginning to appropriate enough nutriment. It attacks dyspepsia by beginning with the appetite and the assimilative powers. Rest, nourishment and a neutralizing of all polsonous humors within the body give a fair field for building up healthful tissues.

Nervous disorders, accompanied by loss of sleep, are so alarmingly prevalent, and their treatment by narcotics and other drugs so disastrous, that the one means that promises alleviation and cure without injury was at once deserving of the closest attention and trial. If one is ever to be watchful and earnest it is when he or she is endeavoring to get well.

The men and women who take the first remedy

The men and women who take the hist remedy that is brought to their attention, by whatever means, are like one who strikes a blow without first taking alm—the result amounts to but little. Persons who feel "run down," who find their appetite failing and their strength diminishing, should take Paine's celery compound. That is not one person's advice. It is the testimony of thousands of the most eminent physicians; and of an of women and men in every State untold number of women and men in every State and town and viliage in the civilized world.

Instead of growing sadder and gloomier week by week, and thinking constantly of the disastrous ending of their illness, people should think of getting strong and well as soon as possible.

What excuse is there for not getting strong and well? Paine's celery compound, the world's great remedy for nervous weakness, can be obtained at any druggist's in any city or in any country town. One can get a heartier, healthier appetite, purify the blood and increase its power of feeding the nerves and tissues by taking Paine's celery compound.

Testimonials for publication are taken quite by random by the present proprietors of this great remedy.

The letters are never "doctored."

Titles are never placed before the names of untilled people. Honest but obscure men are never said to be "honorables." Every-day kind of men who have been made well by Paine's celery compound are never paraded before the public as "The Great Mr. So-and-So," or "The Wonderfully Successful Mr. This and That." Cases of ordinary sickness are never elaborated into hideous, impossible diseases.

When it happens that the mail brings a heartfelt letter from such a man as State Treasurer Colvin of New-York, of Mr. Carlisle's private secretary, or Edmund Russell, or Mayor McShare of Montreal, or Rev. Fr. Odellet, or Commodore Howell, or Mr. Gillam of Judge, or Ida Lewis, or ex-Minister to Austria John M. Francis, or any other widely known man or woman who expressly wishes others to be benefited by his or her experience, the proprietors of Paine's celery compound gladly give such unsolicited testimonials to the public press.

But one person's health is as valuable as another's, and in publishing the testimonials of people whom this great remedy has made strong and well, no particular emphasis is put upon such person's official standing.

The world is made up of what Abraham Lincoln called "the plain people." It is they whom Paine's celery compound has most benefited.

Here is a letter (verbatim) just received from Louisa Pierce, of Melette, S. D.:

"I used Paine's celery compound first for rheumatism, and found that it helped me very much. I have since used it for nervousness and kidney trouble, and have received very much benefit from its use, and consider it one of the best of remedies. Mr. A. TEST OF FRIDAY-MR. BRAND'S PLANS. No transatiantic trip will be taken this year by the international challenge cup offered by the Sea-wanhaka-Corinthian Club for half-raters, the fifth and decisive race having been won in almost walkover by the graceful little Ethelwynn, of the Indian Harbor Club, against Spruce IV, the British challenger, owned and salled by J. Arthur Brand, of the Minima Yacht Club of the Thames, who could find no shadow of excuse for again flying a protest flag, as he did on Friday. The version of the incentive to the mysterious protest given in yesterday's Tribune proved to be a correct solution of the English yachtsman's complaint. After the Regatta Committee had wrestled with the protest until late into the night, they came to the conclusion that was unfounded, and it was accordingly ruled out, the contesting yachts being thereby required to sail

Mr. Rose, who is a lending member of the Jockey Club, and gave the Racehorse Stakes for the Newmarket meeting. Mr. Rose breeds horses at Hardwicke Hall, and has taken the name for his yacht, the Distant Shore, from a well-known racing mare owned by him, which won a number of races, but has now gone to the stud.

A Clyde expert advises Mr. Rose to test his new boat in the Government tank at Torquay, where experiments are made with paraffin wax models of warships to ascertain the exact form in which a vessel will offer the least frictional resistance to the waves in its progress through the water. Some of the Clyde builders who have adopted the same method hold that by means of these experiments with An outside, instead of an inside course was de-cided upon by the tossing of a 25-cent piece recently coined at the United States Mint, the coin turning a final race vesterday. was running. There was no exciting incident in the race, which was somewhat tame, on account of the superiority of the Ethelwynn. Both boats were handled in a of the Ethelwynn. Both boats were handled in a masterly manner. On account of a shift in the wind just after the Ethelwynn crossed the finishing line, Spruce IV, being so far astern, was compelled to make an extra tack, by which she lost from two to three minutes, but there was no circumstance or wind variation that could have affected the result of the race. When the clusive little Ethelwynn shot over the home mark about one and one-half miles ahead of her competitor she was greeted with an ear-splitting chorus of steam whistics and cheers from attendant yachts, and Spruce IV received similar salutation when she came in, nearly eleven minutes astern. A WOMAN MURDERED IN PROVIDENCE. Providence, Sept. 28 .- Mrs. Lucy Lindsey, fifty-five years old, was found murdered in her house, at No. 166 Mathewson st., to-day. She had been killed for her diamonds and what other property and money was in the nouse. The deed was committed with an axe. An iceman found the body this morning, after crawling in through a second-story window. Every drawer, table and box in the house had been ransacked, and the place was literally turned upside down. The house bore a bad reputation.

A NEW-YORK MAN LOST IN THE MOUNTAINS Asheville, N. C., Sept. 25.-A man, about twentyeight years old, and well dressed, arrived at the day, and registered as C. F. Howard, New-York, He seemed to be down-hearted and apparently in poor health. On Tuesday afternoon Howard left the hotel. As he did not return, the hotel people became alarmed and made up a searching party. They traced Howard to the Swannanca tunnel and across the mountain as far as the home of Hiram Kelly.

across the mountain as far as the home of Hiram Kelly.

Kelly stated that a man of Howard's appearance had passed there seemingly very slek, and had asked the way to Old Fort. This is the last trace to be found of the man. Before Howard left, he gave the hotel clerk a check for $12, drawn by General Manager Fuller, of the Western Union Company, at New-York.

The name of C. F. Howard is not in the New-York A Tribune reporter was told at the Western Union general office last night that there was no local manager of the company by the name of Fuller.
